We Present Our 9th Rarities Sale. Buy or Make a Lower Offer.....

In Rarities Sale 8, I mentioned that a 1913 Liberty Nickel had sold for $4 Million. Hetty Green's son, Colonel Green was the proud owner of all five of these classic rarities. One could correctly state that these nickels made the coin hobby what it is today! Through advertising, these Nickels became legendary. A brief biography about Hetty Green and her famous collector son follows along with a very rare stock for sale signed by Hetty. Another offered is issued to her estate and is signed by her son Col. Green as executor. We are constantly finding great pieces like these which we can offer to our clients through our catalogs or directly by phone or on approval. Please phone me as I'm always happy to hear from our customers. 800 717-9529 George LaBarre

IT'S NOT EASY BEING GREEN

As we have learned from numerous biographies and recent Hollywood films, many brilliant financiers, entrepreneurs, and leaders of our countries exciting economic past were eccentrics. America's fixation with the rich and famous has created a demand for the details of such individuals' lives, often ranking or comparing them to others. One business-woman in particular has been identified as unusual and has earned the honor of being named to the Guinness Book of World Records "Miser hall of fame". Hetty Green, born Henrietta Howland Robinson November 21, 1834, was inducted into this elite club.

Referred to as the "Witch of Wall Street" or "the pride and pain" of Bellows Falls, Vermont, Hetty Green is ranked as one of the top 50 richest individuals of all time, the only woman to have earned this acclaim. It is estimated that at the time of her death (July 3, 1916) she was worth 100 million dollars, which is the equivalent of 1.5 billion today. She was raised as a Quaker, and her family maintained a modest lifestyle despite their lucrative whaling business. Many speculate that this encouraged Hetty's intense and well known frugality and stinginess.

Hetty Green's childhood included spending the majority of her time with men, specifically her grandfather who took guardianship of her at the age of two due to her mother's (Abby Howland) poor health. At age six, Hetty had begun reading financial papers to family members whose eyesight was failing. She was quickly drawn to the world of finance and opened her first savings account at age eight. By the age of thirteen she had become the family bookkeeper. At age fifteen, she attended an affluent school in Boston but found difficulty interacting with others and respecting authority.

Authority was something that Hetty would not have to struggle with for very long. At age 21, her father (Edward Mott Robinson) passed away and left her an inheritance of seven and a half million dollars, which she multiplied many times over with her investments in Civil War bonds, Railroads, and Real Estate.

As a specialist in collectible stocks and bonds for over 25 years, we've owned only one stock signed by Hetty Green; a Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific. That is until now! We were so very excited to have found four St. Paul and Duluth stocks dated 1887 in the famous Northern Pacific Archive. Of the entire issue of this important company, the only truly big treasures were four stocks issued to and signed by Hetty Green and also four stocks issued to and signed by James J. Hill. Interestingly, all four made out to Green were misspelled at the front "Hettie H. R. Green". She then signed each stock correctly "Hetty H. R. Green" at the back. This stock illustrates nicely her involvement in railroad investments.

HETTY H. R. GREEN SIGNED STOCK

Y1. Hetty Howland Robinson Green (1835-1916), Financier, known as the Witch of Wall Street and "The Richest Woman in the World" and probably the greatest woman financier in history. Stock of the Saint Paul & Duluth RR issued to "Hettie H. R. Green", curiously the correct "Hetty" is misspelled. She signs correctly "Hetty H. R. Green" at back. 1 of only 4 issued. This is at the very top of the rarest of financial autographs on stocks. Excellent Condition. $5,000

Hetty, in an effort to save money, used the floor of the National Park Bank and Chemical National Bank as her office. Some believe she ate only cold oatmeal and 15 cent pies, took public transportation to her "office", and stayed in cheap boarding houses in New York. Other eccentricities of Mrs. Green's included; buying broken cookies in bulk at the supermarket, not washing her hands, riding in an old carriage instead of automobiles, searching all night for a 2 cent stamp she had lost, wearing simple black dresses until they had fallen apart, and only having the bottom of her dress laundered... and all to save money. Her stinginess caused her to take her Aunt to court for fear that her Aunt would give her 2 million inheritance of her brother's to charity. Many believe that Hetty forged her father's signature on an important document to help her case against her Aunt. After litigation lasting five years, Hetty lost this case (Robinson vs. Mandell). During this time, Hetty (age 33) married Edward Henry Green, member of a wealthy Vermont family. Prior to their marriage (July 11, 1867), she made him renounce all rights to her wealth. There are claims that she married only so that her relatives could not get their hands on her money. The newlyweds moved into Edward's home in Manhattan and later fled to London when her Aunt and cousins attempted to sue her for the past forgery. Her two children, Edward H.R. Green (Ned) and Sylvia Green, were born there.

ESTATE OF HETTY H. R. GREEN

Y2. E. H. R. Green signs a transfer document as Trustee of his mother's estate. The purchase of West Shore Railroad Co. $10,000 bonds totaled $140,000. Quite a large sum for 1919! Excellent Condition Bond and signed transfer document. Extremely Rare. The Pair. $1,250

Hetty continued her stingy and independent lifestyle which eventually led to her separation from Edward Green. In her older years, Hetty suffered many strokes, eventually relying on a wheel chair. She became paranoid and believed that others were conspiring against her. At the age of 80 (1916), Hetty Green died of a cerebral stroke (apoplexy) caused by a hemorrhage in her brain. Apparently, this incident took place while she was arguing with her housing staff about the benefits of skimmed milk. Hetty's son E. H. R. Green became Trustee of her estate and here we illustrate a rather high denomination $10,000 bond issued to her estate plus an "Irrevocable Bond Power" dated 1927 signed by E. H. R. Green-Trustee Estate of Hetty H. R. Green. Fourteen such bonds were issued as noted on this document. This one power would have been signed for all 14 bonds. This is truly a rare and important pair of bond and signed power.

Sadly, Hetty's children sometimes fell victim to her intense stinginess, yet some stories have been a bit exaggerated. Charlie's Stack's (2004) book entitled, "Hetty" explains; "Of all of the myths and legends about Hetty's miserliness handed down from generation to generation, the most persistent and unflattering is that she allowed her son's leg to worsen over the years because she was too cheap to seek the care of doctors. As with most myths, the actual story is more complex...The suggestion that Hetty stood by cavalierly while Ned's leg withered away is both inaccurate and unfair. In fact, Hetty did seek medical care, repeatedly. Her son was the principal love of her life. Looking across the broad canvas of their odd but loving relationship, their devotion to one another until the day Hetty died, it is inconceivable that Hetty would have endured Ned's suffering in order to save money". It is however true that Edward H.R. Green (Ned) in childhood, developed serious leg problems that started as a dislocated knee from a sledding accident. Ned later developed gangrene and his leg was amputated. He never held her responsible and she never allowed him to use his disability as an excuse of any kind.

Despite his difficult childhood and his mother's eccentric lifestyle, Edward Green thrived and displayed little of his mother's hindering obsessive features. Born in 1868, Edward H.R. Green received his AB from Fordham College (1888) and was admitted to the Bar. A few of his professional accolades include; Superintendent and later the Managing Director of the Ohio and Mississippi Railroad, President and General Manager of the Texas Midland Railroad 1893. He was Director of the Chase National Bank in NY, and Commissioner and director of the St. Louis World Fair Exposition in 1904. He also displayed a variety of interests in technology and in 1922 presented Dartmouth College with a large donation to be used towards the construction of a radio station, the most advanced in the country.

One of five 1913 Liberty Nickels owned by Col. Green sold in 2005 for over $4 Million. In 1939 the Col. Green Estate sold all five of these legendary coins for a total of $2,000 to author and collector Eric Newman.

Edward H.R. Green was an avid collector of horses, yachts, railroad cars, and also women. He is most known for collections he created in the fields of philatelics and numismatics. His passions combined with his sizable fortune allowed him to become a serious stamp and coin collector, acquiring two of the greatest collections ever assembled in private hands during his life.

At one point in time, Edward was the proud owner of the "Inverted Jenny" sheet. This 1918 24-cent airmail stamp illustrates an upside down Curtiss JN-4 biplane. It is arguably the most famous US stamp. It is estimated that one of the remaining blocks of four is valued at a minimum of one million dollars.

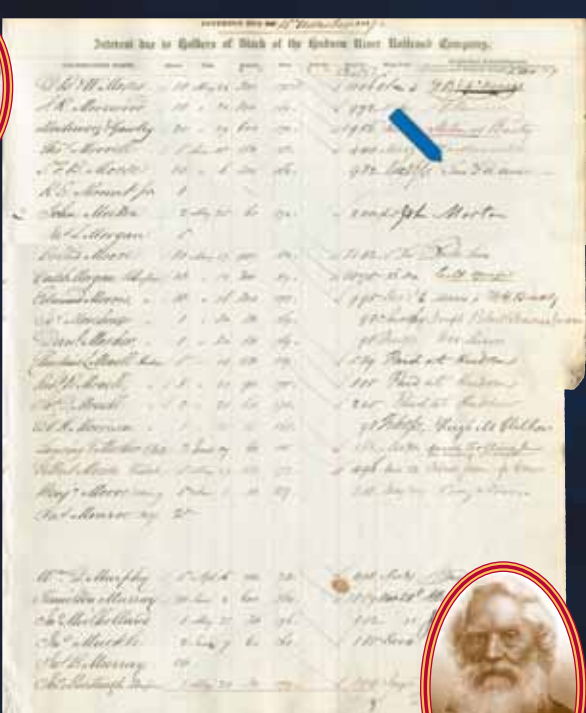

Edward H.R. Green had also been the proud owner of all of the 1913 Liberty Nickels. These five coins were displayed at the 2003 American Numismatic Association's "World's Fair of Money" in Baltimore, Maryland. The five nickels had not been displayed together since 1920. One example of this classic rarity sold in 2005 for over 4 Million Dollars. So much has been written about these great rarities and over the decades they have developed a very colorful reputation. Certainly, it is not an overstatement to rank it as the most famous of all American Coins.

Whether one is collecting stocks and bonds, coins, paper money, autographs, or whatever it may be, knowing more about the history behind these bits of paper and metal can be so very important. Knowing more about these dynamic, interesting, and sometimes eccentric people like "Hetty Green" can bring collectibles to life and make them so very exciting. Now we know, "It's Not Easy Being Green". Research and education enriches our lives and makes it all fun! Isn't this why we collect?

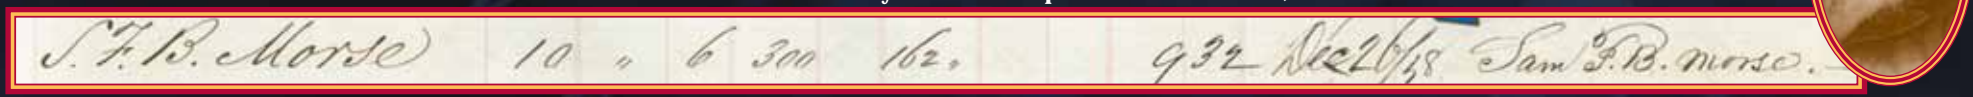

The legendary 24c Inverted Airplane Stamp. A Block of 4 of this classic rarity has a value of $1 Million.

AUTOGRAPHED STOCKS & BONDS

SUPERB STANDARD OIL TRUST STOCKS

Y160. Signed by John D. Rockefeller and Henry M. Flagler at front, as President and Secretary. John D. Rockefeller (1839-1937), Industrialist, Philanthropist. In 1863 Rockefeller first joined in building an oil refinery. He monopolized 85% of the industry and became the world's first billionaire. He hated waste and would target poorly run segments of the industry, driving poorly run competition out of business. He became the most detested man in the country and had a bodyguard continuously. Rockefeller gave 3/4 of a billion dollars to science and education. In one of the 1st public relations campaigns in history, Rockefeller would give a shiny new dime to whomever he would meet. Rockefeller signs along with Henry M. Flagler (1830-1913), Capitalist and Promoter. Rockefeller once stated in court that Flagler was "the brains behind the Standard Oil Trust." He transformed Florida into one of the most luxurious playgrounds in the world. The signatures are very lightly cut canceled and Superb. The eye appeal is outstanding. The signature of Rockefeller is especially large and bold. Excellent Condition. So Very Rare with all these qualities!! Rich green & black or 100 Share Brown & Black, dated 1880's-90's, NY. Engraved by Franklin Bank Note. Portraits of both Rockefeller and Flagler are included. Exceptional examples without the all too common pen lines across the signatures. The ultimate American stock to own! Special Price! $2,500 each

J. PIERPONT MORGAN-100 YEAR RAILROAD BOND!

Y161. J. Pierpont Morgan (1837-1913), Banker, Connoisseur of Art, son of Junius S. Morgan. Involved in his early years in a broad range of finance, his company, J. P. Morgan & Co. became one of the most powerful banking houses in the world. He engaged in several dubious pieces of business during the Civil War period, but was essentially an organizer and stabilizing force in business. After the failure of Jay Cooke's firm, Morgan's firm became dominant in government financing and in financing railroads. Among his most daring undertakings was the formation of the US Steel Corp. in 1901. Morgan's personal influence was a decisive factor in overcoming the money panic of 1907. Superb 100 year bond of the New Jersey Junction Railroad dated 1886, nearly four pages of attractive coupons remaining. The bond is boldly signed at back by J. Pierpont Morgan and H. C. Fahnestock as Trustees. A large impressive vignette of a harbor scene is also at the back. Graphically beautiful both front and back. Includes nice portraits of both Morgan and Fahnestock. Superb Near Mint Condition!!! Any other type of stock or bond signed by Morgan will sell in the $2,000 or more range. This Bond is a Great Value at this Special Price!!! $850

THOMAS A. EDISON-
EDISON PHONOGRAPH WORKS

Y161a. Thomas Alva Edison (1847-1931), considered the greatest Inventor in history. His formal education lasted only three months. He was home schooled by his Mother at the age of 9, she bought him a chemistry book. That began his interest in Chemistry and testing experiments. As a youth he sold newspapers and snacks on the Grand Trunk Railway. While aboard the train he conducted chemical experiments. In 1868 he worked as a telegrapher in Boston. His first invention, an electro-graphic vote recorder, was patented in 1869. He also took out patents for an improved stock ticker, a telegraph device used to report the price of gold to brokers' offices. In 1876 he moved his laboratory to Menlo Park, NJ. In 1879, he made commercially practicable the incandescent lamp, but did not invent it. Other inventions included the kinetoscope, ore-mill machinery, the storage battery, and dictating machine. He invented the phonograph, his greatest single achievement from the viewpoint of inventive imagination. In 1888, he founded the Edison Phonograph Works. New Jersey stock dated 1888 signed at front with ink cancellation line, issued to Edison and beautifully signed at back. Very Rare! Exceptional example! $2,900

U161b. Same as above, but no ink cancellation line in signature, instead it is very slightly hole cancelled with tiny holes. The back signature is uncanceled. Exceptionally Nice! $3,200

ANTONIO LOPEZ de SANTA ANNA BOND

U161c. Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, (1795?-1876), Mexican General, Revolutionist, President and Dictator. Santa Anna boldly signs this extremely graphic bond. It is without doubt the most impressive and ornate of all autographed stocks or bonds. This $500 bond was issued in 1866 from New York City while Santa Anna was living in exile. While he schemed to depose Emperor Maximilian, he issued these bonds in hopes of regaining power. In these attempts, he was captured and sentenced to death. Still, he was released and allowed to retire to New York and later when blind, he died in poverty and neglect. Of course, we remember him because of his success over the Texans at the Alamo and later his defeat and capture by Sam Houston at San Jacinto in 1836. Found in an old leather container in Texas, this American bond is fully issued, uncanceled, has no folds, has full margins and is in Superb condition. A "True Classic" and a must for any serious collection!!! $1,200

CLAUS SPRECKELS - SAN FRANCISCO & SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY Rwy

Y167. Claus Spreckels (1828-1908), became known as "The Sugar King" on the West Coast. He was able to monopolize the business by purchasing raw sugar in Hawaii. Spreckels financed the Pacific Steamship which reduced his freight costs. He built the San Francisco and San Joaquin Valley Railway to bring competition to California's Central Valley to reduce the stranglehold of the Central Pacific/Southern Pacific. Three of his four sons also made fortunes. John founded the Oceanic Steamship Co. John published the San Diego Union and the San Francisco Call. Rudolph became President of the First National Bank of San Francisco. This 1895 Stock is issued to the Trustees of various individuals including A. B. Spreckels and a badly canceled signature of Claus Spreckels as President. $250

WILLIAM ALBERT PAINE - LAKE COPPER CO

Y168. William Albert Paine (1855-1930), In 1899 he partnered with John Stanton, who was already well known in the Cooper Country with his interest in the Stanton-Gay group which had controlling interest in the Atlantic, Central and Allouez mines. The Paine-Stanton group was formed in 1899 to develop the land between Ontonagon and Houghton. This group was incorporated as the Copper Range Railroad and the Copper Range Consolidated Co., with William Paine as President and John Stanton on the board. In 1901 this corporation controlled the Baltic and Trimountain mines, the Copper Range Railroad, 50% of the Champion mine and 60% of Michigan Smelting Company. In 1904 this group of companies mined 62 million pounds of copper, which accounted for 30% of the total output of Michigan's copper mines. C & H was the largest at 39%. This 1922 Michigan Stock is signed by the founder of Paine, Webber and Co, William A. Paine. $400

(1880-1932) "The Match King" at the height of his career between 1927-30, he controlled 3/4 of the world's output of matches. He became one of financial histories most famous swindlers using a tactic of inflating values of his companies. Kreuger was playing the old Ponzi game--paying dividends out of capital and trusting to more capital to keep the ball rolling. His essential philosophy of accounting was that a balance sheet existed mainly to paint pictures for the public. He wrote his balance sheets and annual reports himself. He believed that the function of figures was not to reproduce the situation as it existed but to create an impression of it as he wished to portray it. His business conduct led to reforms in accounting and company direction both in the U.S. and Sweden. Excellent Condition. Important! $65

Cripple Creek is a city in Teller County, Colorado, 24 miles southwest of Colorado Springs, Colorado on the southern slopes of Pike's Peak. It was the most fabulous gold mining camp of Colorado.

Thousands of prospectors flocked to the mountains, including W. S. Stratton, who located the fabulous Independence Mine. The gold-bearing area was the core of an ancient volcano of six square miles. Cripple Creek is in the Thirtynine Mile volcanic field. Free gold was found near the surface but at depth unoxidized tellurides and sulphides were found. However to keep the ore flowing, Governor James Peabody on November 23, 1903 sent the state militia into Cripple Creek to break up a miners' strike. But by 1935 half a billion dollars in gold, most figured at the price of $20 an ounce, had been extracted. At the turn of the century Cripple Creek and its sister city, Victor, were substantial towns.

The Northern Pacific Railroad

Perhaps no other industry in the history of America captures the adventurous spirit embodied in capitalism quite like that of the railroad. The completion of the Northern Pacific as America's second trans-continental railroad offers no better example of the triumph of the entrepreneurial spirit in the face of overwhelming odds. In 1864, President Abraham Lincoln signed into law the Northern Pacific's charter making it the beneficiary of the largest government railroad land grant in American history. This grant would eventually include over forty million acres and a vast extinguishment of Indian land titles. The original incorporators, led by the tireless advocate Josiah Perham set out to link Lake Superior to Puget Sound. It would take nearly twenty years and countless heartaches and setbacks until the final spike completing the line was ceremoniously driven on September 8, 1883 fifty-five miles west of Helena, Montana.

Custer's Last Stand

The history of the N.P.'s growth as an entity is filled with the stories of western legend and Wall Street intrigue. From the white-collar offices of New York investment bankers to the lowliest Chinese coolie worker grading the road, the construction of the Northern Pacific was fraught with danger. Indeed, the early engineering parties were protected by none other than George Armstrong Custer as the railroad cut a swath through lands of the Sioux and other Indian tribes. As Indian lands shrank, opportunity grew for the capitalist white man. And a mesmerized Wall Street continued to pour millions upon millions more into the new frontier which offered untold potential riches, as well as some of the greatest financial risks ever taken by the investment community. As one of the largest corporate undertakings of the 19th century, the Northern Pacific's development attracted many of America's most well-known financiers, bankers, industrialists, and businessmen from virtually every imaginable pursuit.

General Custer

By the time the road was completed in 1883, it had already gone through two reorganizations and it would ultimately suffer more. The fortunes of illustrious Americans such as Jay Cooke, Frederick Billings, and Henry Villard would become inextricably tied to the railroad's success and failure. Villard's Blind Pool strategy to secretly secure funding for a takeover remains today as one of the boldest market innovations in Wall Street history.

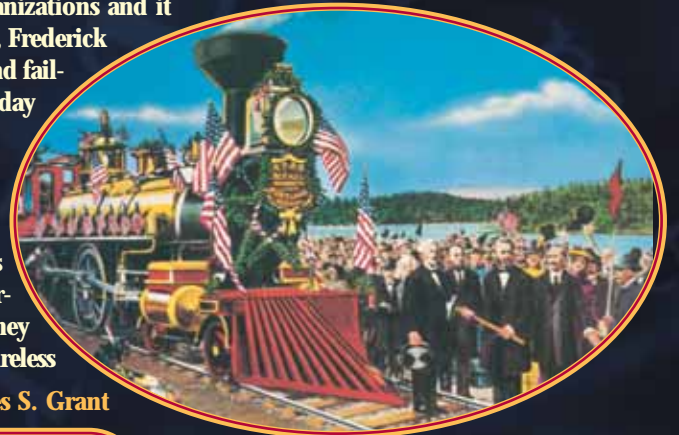

Jay Cooke

Henry Villard

Great pioneer American photographers such as William H. Jackson, Edward Curtiss, Charles Russell, Timothy O'Sullivan, and the Northern Pacific's official photographer F. J. Haynes brought eastward via the road awe-inspiring images of the wonders of Yellowstone Valley and the unique intrigue of the American Indian. These extraordinary photographs would become a most important medium for selling the west. They also remain today as an essential reminder of what inspired the Northern Pacific's tireless developers who risked so much to see the railroad through to completion.

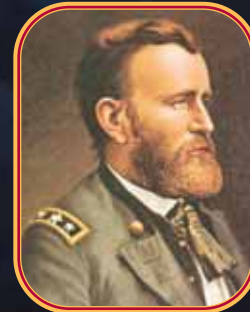

Ulysses S. Grant

Frederick Billings

In the final analysis, the Northern Pacific and its various branch and subsidiary lines contributed in large part to the opening of the Northwestern United States. Vast natural resources including minerals and timber were tapped. Immigrants traveled from around the globe seeking better opportunity and indeed, many fortunes were won by those who barely spoke a word of English upon their arrival in America. The numerous frontier boom and bust towns which sprang up along the NP and its branch lines remain today as a testament to its importance in America's history. The Northern Pacific Railroad opened the opportunity for many to realize the American Dream. As such, its story offers us one of the finest examples of the human spirit to realize that ideal.

The above is from a painting based on photographs by F. J. Haynes, showing the completion of the Northern Pacific's main line between the Great Lakes and the Northern Pacific Coast. Among the dignitaries shown at this "Last Spike" ceremony, held at Gold Creek, Montana Territory, September 8, 1883, are Gen. Ulysses S. Grant, holding the spike mallet, and, at his left, Henry Villard, then president of the Northern Pacific.

FREDERICK BILLINGS

"Billings was honored by a resolution that authorized placing an engraving of his portrait on the company's stock certificates. Though he protested that the portrait would give him too much prominence, he accepted the compliment, declaring the reconstruction of the Northern Pacific to be 'one of the most gratifying events of my life.'"

Northern Pacific Railroad Stocks Dated 1876-97

JAY COOKE AND THE NORTHERN PACIFIC RR

Jay Cooke

The nation was slowly healing its wounds and recovering from the disastrous effects of the Civil War. Visionaries of the period looked to the future and the opportunities available in a recovering nation's expansion. Naturally so, men of stout hearts looked west. Thus, it is no surprise that the man who successfully orchestrated the Union effort in selling bonds to finance the war turned his eye toward his next great challenge, the resurrection of the Northern Pacific Railroad. After years of failed attempts at financing the road, the future of the company lie in doubt. Jay Cooke arrived on the scene, successfully lobbying Congress for legislative change which would facilitate his grand plan for financing the construction of the road. Thus the first tracks of what would become America's second transcontinental railroad were laid. As construction continued, rising costs necessitated the need for constantly growing amounts of capital and Jay Cooke boldly took the lead. His optimism for the costly project exceeded even his firm's abilities to muster the financial resources to continue in the face of ever-increasing fears of failure by the banking community. Ultimately, with Jay Cooke & Company's fortunes closely tied to the Northern Pacific Project, the firm failed and was forced into bankruptcy and in some part, contributed to the onset of the financial panic of 1873.

YNP64. Jay Cooke Signed Stock, 1870's $750

YNP65. Same but signed by both Jay Cooke and Jay Cooke, Jr. $900

SAINT PAUL AND DULUTH RAILROAD

Originally incorporated in 1863 and known as the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad, the road provided the first service between Duluth and the Twin Cities upon its completion in 1870. Serving as the all-important eastern terminus of the Northern Pacific Railroad, the road linked the Great Lakes and the Mississippi River. A victim of the panic of 1873, the company defaulted on its bonds and was reorganized in 1877 as the Saint Paul and Duluth Railroad. It was absorbed by the Northern Pacific in 1900. These exceptional stocks are beautifully printed by American Bank Note Company. The two Steamships and Locomotive scenes are so very impressive. A fine example of engraving of this Golden Era of Financial Printing.

ACCESSORY TRANSIT CO OF NICARAGUA
Y516. Charles Morgan (1795-1878), once named the largest ship-owner in the U.S., was entirely self educated. Son of a Welsh immigrant, Morgan moved to New York City. By age 21, he had started his own business selling provisions to ships. Shortly after, this entrepreneur's innate business sense helped him to become involved with sailing vessels to the West Indies. From this point, Morgan's empire grew, including lines of mail steamers (The Morgan Line) connecting New York with Texas.

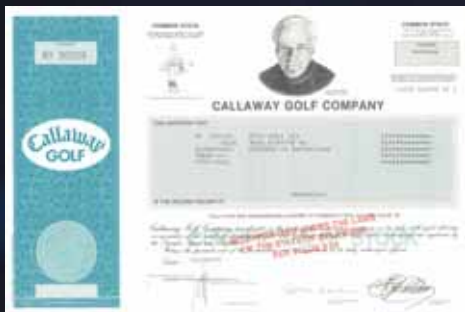

During the 1850's, Morgan became involved with Vanderbilt's Nicaragua Transit on the Atlantic, for which he was an agent in New York and later became president in 1853, after Vanderbilt went to Europe. During Vanderbilt's absence, Morgan and C.K. Garrison manipulated stock prices, causing Vanderbilt to lose a great deal while they continued to earn money. Morgan and Garrison attempted to gain control of the Nicaraguan government and obtain rights of the Transit. Allegedly, Vanderbilt did not pursue litigation against the two men because "the law takes too long" and is reported to have said, "I will ruin you." Vanderbilt was successful in closing the Transit, with the help of Sylvanus Spencer and Costa Rican troops, who traveled to Nicaragua and applied pressure. Fortunately for Morgan, the closing of the Nicaragua Transit did not ruin his finances. Of course, this companies claim to fame was to facilitate delivery of goods and passengers to the gold fields of California. Ships would unload on the Atlantic side, delivery by land through Nicaragua to the Pacific side and then continue by ship to California. Later, the Civil War provided Morgan with increased business from the U.S. government; he chartered and sold a multitude of his steamers during this time. This Rare Autographed Bond is signed by Charles Morgan and his associates. We had occasion (20 years ago) to visit a stock and bond dealer in Switzerland. He showed us a similar bond signed by Commodore Vanderbilt. What a thrilling piece and likely worth $20,000 or so at present! Since then, we've never seen an example of this historic bond. The bond is Certificate #3 and dated 1855. A very important part of the history of shipping and the Gold Rush. Rare and Excellent Condition. $2,500

U. S. OBSOLETE BANK NOTES

Obsolete Currency, often referred to as Broken Bank Notes is an area of collecting that has become very, very popular in recent years. Prices have risen as demand is so strong. Very few collectors are willing to sell their collections and fresh material hardly comes out of the woodwork. This is one of our favorite collectibles because of superb graphics. Collecting by state is fun and has great appeal. Please feel free to contact us if you are interested in collecting a particular state. 800 717-9529

GERMANY - NOTGELD CURRENCY

After WWI, Germany was plunged into one of the worst inflations ever to hit a western country as the government struggled with the truly massive punitive damages demanded by the Treaty of Versailles. During this brief period of hyper-inflation, people who did not convert their savings into tangible assets lost them completely. Many bank accounts were closed because even large pre-war sums of 100,000 Marks were longer worth even the price of a postage stamp. The middle class was by and large reduced to poverty, theft and petty crime soared, pensions became worthless and many people starved to death.

There were two main types of inflationary banknote printed. Standard Reichsbank notes, and what is known as notgeld (a German word meaning "emergency money"). The Reichsbank notes were issued by the central bank in Berlin, while notgeld was printed by city banks, small towns, all manner of public bodies, the German railway departments and even private companies. These five notes offered are unusual in that they are in silk or linen.

PLEASE SHOW YOUR SUPPORT

Victims of Hurricane Katrina, Rita and other disasters need our support. These disasters have left major portions of the U. S. in shambles; homes and businesses have been destroyed, lives lost and families have been dislocated to an extreme that we've not seen at any point in American history.

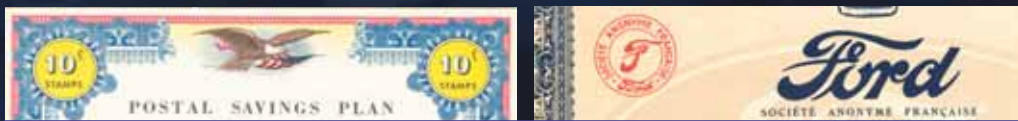

We at LaBarre Galleries would like to add our support by encouraging you to participate in these relief efforts. This work will go on for years.

If you donate $100 or more to your choice of The American Red Cross or The Salvation Army, LaBarre Galleries will send you $200 in LaBarre Currency, which can be used towards your next purchase. This includes all purchases of any kind at any time. Please make your check payable to the "American Red Cross - National Disaster Relief" or "Salvation Army - Disaster Relief" and we will forward the checks to these aid organizations.
